

Japanese Course for Foreign Exchange Students Syllabus

Class Name	Japanese III (C) [Conversation/Listening Comprehension]
Offered Semester	Spring Semester
Topic	Mastering intermediate and advanced level conversation and listening skills.
Class Outline	From the textbook, “How would you say it in this situation?” section help students to activate knowledge and understanding of each chapter’s conversation scene. Students will listen to the conversation of “Listening Practice 1” section to establish skills to choose words and phrases depending on the interlocutor and situation. “Listening Practice 2” section help students to establish skills to correctly understand the intention and emotions of the speaker and be able to say your own feelings in response. “Point Listening” section involves listening practice of short passages that may be misunderstood by different intonations and expressions. “Important expressions by function” section include practical exercises and explain how to use the important expressions from each chapter. Role plays will also be done to practice speaking.
Objectives	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. This class aim to train students' listening ability for conversation, helping them to acquire the skills they need to adjust their manner of expression based on context. 2. Students aim to achieve listening ability to correctly understand information supplied to them within conversations and understand their interlocutor's purpose and feelings on a given matter. Students also aim to achieve speaking ability to be able to respond depending on the conversation, interlocutor or place.
Class Format	Lectures (including occasional pair and group-based activities)